Join us for a momentous occasion in our history—the 55th anniversary of the Department of Computer Science at Southern University and A&M College. We are also thrilled to celebrate the 45th anniversary of the Dr. Leroy C. Roquemore Symposium. We cordially invite you to be a part of these special milestones, reconnecting with former classmates, professors, industry partners, and current students.

The festivities will commence on Wednesday, September 20th, with an alumni mixer, providing an opportunity for classes spanning the 55 years to connect. On Thursday, September 21st, we will host the official symposium featuring esteemed guest lecturers and panel discussions, catering to both current students and alumni. The event will culminate with a banquet dinner on the same day, honoring the 45th anniversary of the Symposium and recognizing outstanding students and influential alumni. On Friday, September 22nd, we will conclude with an alumni brunch, where we will brainstorm ideas on how our collective forces can support the department.

Our faculty, staff, and former students are buzzing with excitement as we celebrate 55 years of continuous service to the world. We invite all alumni and friends to join us in this grand celebration. We kindly request your financial or in-kind contribution to help cover the costs of the events, including luncheon and dinner for students, as well as tokens for the participants. By contributing, your company will be acknowledged as a valuable supporter of this historic occasion. Based upon the sponsorship level, your company can send representatives to participate in the events at no extra cost. To contribute and/or register, please visit <https://foundation.sus.edu/department-of-computer-science-55th-anniversary>. Should you have any questions or wish to volunteer, please don't hesitate to reach out.

Your participation and contributions are highly appreciated, and we eagerly anticipate your presence in September.
